Fan Draws Gas Into Tube—
Victims Lie on Benches and Curb.

The overturning of a 300-pound tank of chlorine on the freight platform of the Erie Railroad at the foot of Pavonia avenue, Jersey City, at 8.30 o'clock to-day spread a pall of deadly fumes over an adjacent passenger platform, sent a jet of the same suffocating gas down into the tunnel connecting the Erie station with the underground station of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad and caused more than fifty people to drop under partial asphyxiation.

Besides those whose names the police took as the most seriously affected by the gas, at one time there were thirty-five or forty others who were stretched out on the benches of the Erie station and on the curb of Pavonia avenue deathly sick and gasping for breath.

Ambulances from the City Hospital and St. Francis Hospital could not bring enough surgeons to attend all the victims and nearby physicians were hastily summoned by telephone to aid in the work of resuscitation.

Only one sufferer, Mrs. Emma Barry Allen of the Hotel Marie Antoinette, New York, is still in a serious condition.

NAMES OF VICTIMS AS GIVEN BY POLICE.

The names of those injured which the police were able to collect are as follows:
Allen, Mrs. Emma Barry, of the Hotel Marie Antoinette, New York; in a serious condition at St. Francis Hospital after revival by a physician.
Blake, Thomas R., of No. 67 Terrace avenue, West Nutley; overcome and taken to Hudson Street Hospital, New York.
Lewis, Mrs. Daniel, of No. 204 Sylvan street, Rutherford, N. J.; overcome and attended on Chambers street ferryboat by Dr. Payne, of Newark, N. Y.
Rager, Peter, porter at the Erie station; overcome and treated by ambulance surgeon at the station.
Silverberg, Aaron, of No. 51 St. Nicholas avenue, New York; overcome and taken to St. Francis's Hospital.
Swan, Fred, station master; overcome and treated by ambulance surgeon at the station.
Vreeland, Mrs. Charles, and four-year-old son, of No. 227 Harrison street, Jersey City; both overcome and treated by ambulance surgeon at the station.
Wagner, Miss Grace, of Magnolia avenue, Maywood, N. J.; overcome and attended by Dr. Payne on ferryboat.

HER ERLANGER ACCUSATIONS TRUE, DECLARES ACTRESS

Miss St. Clair Upsets Disbarment Proceedings Against Max Steuer by Confession.

A surprise was sprung to-day by the attorneys for Max Steuer, the lawyer, when at the disbarment proceedings invoked against him, they wrung from Miss Edith St. Clair the admission that the affidavit in which she accused Steuer of using her as a tool to extort money from Abraham Erlanger, the theatrical magnate, was not true.

Miss St. Clair told Referee George Hoyt, who was appointed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to conduct the disbarment proceedings, that the affidavit was worthless and that the original testimony she gave before Justice Pendleton at the trial of her suit against Erlanger was true. "I felt that I was compelled to make that false affidavit because, if I did not, Klav and Erlanger would keep me out of employment for the rest of my life," Miss St. Clair told the referee.

At the conclusion of the session late this afternoon Miss St. Clair, showing signs of fatigue, was led from the room on the arm of Dr. Austin Flint, the physician, who was appointed to examine into her condition by Referee Hoyt. She was on the verge of fainting and was taken into the private office of Referee Hoyt, where smelling salts were administered. Ten minutes later she was placed in an automobile, ambulance and two physicians accompanied her to the Hotel Theresa, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Seventh avenue, where she lives.

When asked by an Evening World reporter why she had made the affidavit, now repudiated, she said that she had told Referee Hoyt that she had been promised employment if she made it.
After weeks of illness brought on by the dread of her coming appearance on the witness stand the actress was finally persuaded to appear to-day. She entered the little room in the law offices of Douglas, Armitage & McCann, Woolworth Building, where the hearing is being held, accompanied by two physicians, who feared that the ordeal might prove too severe. At times the young woman nearly fainted, especially when she was taken over the contents of the affidavit which she repudiated as false.
"It is true," said Mr. Jerome this afternoon, "that Miss St. Clair repudiated her affidavit at to-day's hearing. If I have any idea of the reasons for the repudiation I am not at liberty to express it."

ALLIES SWEEPING ON, SWING TO THE NORTH, DECLARES WAR OFFICE

German War Office Reports That Six Great Fortresses Are Being Battered by Guns That Shattered Maubeuge, Liege and Namur, but French Claim Victory on Left.

VON BOEHM IS CHECKED, THE REPORT FROM PARIS

GERMAN REPORT ON WAR IN FRANCE.

Great Siege Guns Now Trained On Six French Fortresses

BERLIN, Sept. 24 [by wireless via Sayville, L. I., to the United Press].—The War Office, in its report to-day, announces that the attempt of the allies to envelop the army of Gen. von Kluck on the extreme right of the German line has failed.

The War Office also declares that the Germans are now bombarding the entire chain of the Meuse fortifications that extend from Verdun to Toul.

Among the fortresses which are under attack, and whose reduction is now believed certain, are Troyon, Les Paroches, Camp des Romans, Liouville, Commercy and Gironville.

It is stated that the great siege guns, with which Maubeuge, Liege and Namur were demolished, are being used with telling effect here, and that they are slowly battering the French fortresses to pieces.

BERLIN (via The Hague), Sept. 24 [United Press].—The War Office in an official statement to-day declared that attempts of the allies to pierce the German lines have all been frustrated. Both in the eastern and western theatres of conflict, it is asserted, the German success continues.

The report says: "Despite hardships resulting from unfavorable weather conditions the enthusiasm of the German troops is unchecked. They are fighting magnificently in France where they have successfully repulsed numerous attacks in force by the enemy."

"The allied centres have been compelled to give way at a number of points. The attempt of the allies to envelop the German right has utterly failed and the various assaults at this point have been repulsed with very heavy loss."

"The German field artillery has more than fulfilled expectations. The Emperor and the Crown Prince are both in good health and the Emperor continues in touch with the entire field of war."

"In the operations in the east the Russians have been compelled to retire still further into Poland where they are now holding fortified positions, which are being shelled by the German artillery."

"The Russians are reported to be using dum dum bullets."
